1867.

PREFACE.

WE present the Directory for 1867, with the feeling that it is a more complete work than has hitherto been issued for the city of Buffalo. We do not wish to be understood as claiming it to be a complete work—the difficulties incident to the publication of a Directory in a city as large as ours, are too great and too numerous to make any such claim. But we have spared no pains or expense to have it as thorough a work as the circumstances would admit.

The present Directory contains about 260 pages of names, or about 26,000. Last year's Directory contained about 218 pages of names, or about 21,800. Computing the population by the usual mode of multiplying by five, we should have a population of 130,000. This, we believe, is not far from what would be the result of a carefully conducted canvass. And here we would press upon our business men the importance of procuring a thorough and careful census of our city. It is notorious that the census made by State and National authorities for the past twenty years, has been uniformly defective, and it is generally conceded that under the system which prevails, it must necessarily continue to be defective in a high degree. Several of our western cities have found it to their advantage to procure a census by private subscription, and in every instance have proved the defectiveness of the official canvass. Should any of our business men desire to co-operate with us in furtherance of a new and complete census, we shall be happy to confer with them.

We continue the practice of preserving interesting papers read before the Buffalo Historical Society, and this year give, "Sewerage and Sanitary Science," by Oliver G. Steele; "History of Grain Elevators," by Joseph Dart; "Early History of Grand Island and the City of Ararat," by Lewis F. Allen.

BUFFALO CITY SEWERAGE

AND

SANITARY SCIENCE.

A PAPER READ BEFORE THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY CLUB, JAN. 3, 1866.

BY OLIVER G. STEELE, Esq.

GENTLEMEN OF THE BUFFALO HISTORICAL SOCIETY:

The subject of City Sewerage having been assigned me by this Society, I propose to treat it, first, in its historical relations, and second, to make some observations and suggestions upon the general subject of Sanitary Science, of which sewerage is the basis. The subject is one of great importance, in its relations to cities especially, as well as to all aggregations, however small, of habitations for human beings. Nature is continually passing through a process of dissolution and regeneration. The products of each year are consumed, forming the animal life of the current year, while those portions which nature rejects, or is sloughed off in the process, are the active elements in the next year's re-production. It is one of the paramount necessities of civilization to regulate these fixed operations of nature in such manner as to restore to the earth, as the great original producing power, every element of future production; while, at the same time, the matter which will inevitably accumulate shall be disposed of in a manner as little offensive as possible to the human family. A failure to do this, will sooner or later bring upon the community discomfort and disease, corresponding with neglect and inattention to natural laws.

Cleanliness of person and habitation is one of the first as well as the highest attributes of physical civilization. The inexorable laws of nature must be obeyed, and while the savage regards it scarcely more than the beasts of the field, his advances in civilization may always be measured by his increasing regard for the decencies of life. As population advances and gradually acquires fixed habitations, these necessities become more pressing, and conveniences are created to meet its requirements. The tendency of all mankind to gather into communities and create what finally becomes large cities, brings with it the necessity for disposing of the inevitable accumulations of rejected matter.

The ruins of every ancient city show upon investigation, that a large element of its construction is that which pertains to the disposal of rejected matter and offal of the city. While it is not a subject which finds a place in the dignified pages of history—except in casual allusions to stupendous structures for water-supply or roadways—the vast underground work, for their drainage, have scarcely attracted the attention they deserve. It is a fact that the under ground work in all great cities, ancient and modern, has been one of the greatest of their local works, and that the cleanliness and consequent health of every large city, is just in proportion to the completeness of its under ground drainage and water-supply. Large cities in our own country are comparatively modern. It is only within the present century, that they have approached the proportions of the cities of the old world. They have also been built too rapidly, and by a population too much engrossed in the pressing requirements of life, to give much attention to those improvements which posterity were to be the principal recipients. Sewerage, therefore, on any large scale, was substantially unknown, and water works on any scale adequate for general and individual supply, were rarely attempted until within the present century.

With these preliminary remarks, I proceed to the subject of City Sewerage, which comes within the class of subjects which may properly form a paper for this Society.

Previous to 1847 the subject of underground drainage had attracted little attention. A stone sewer had been constructed in Seneca street, east of Ellicott, and also one of a similar character in Swan street, both draining into a small sewer in Michigan street, which connected with the Little Buffalo Creek. These sewers—or drains, as they were called—answered a very good purpose for the time, doing excellent service to the property upon their lines.

In 1834-5 some attention was given to the subject, and sewers were constructed in Ellicott and Oak streets, but of a very inferior character. They were but five or six feet deep, constructed of dry brick, with a board bottom, the bricks laid up projecting inward till they met at the top, and held in place as soon as laid, by the soil thrown upon them. Even these wretched sewers did good service for many years, but have long since been displaced by sewers of modern construction.

In 1847, under the mayoralty of the Hon. E. G. Spaulding, the progress of local improvement had been such, that special attention was drawn to the subject of sewerage, and on the formation of the committees of the Board of Aldermen, a new one was created called the "Committee on Paving, Sewers and Lights." This committee consisted of O. G. Steele, Orlando Allen and Luman K. Plimpton. Although a new committee, it proved to be the most important of the year. The call for paving was pressing, city lights there were none, and sewerage was so little known as to be scarcely recognized among city improvements.

There was, therefore, abundant work for the committee. Paving on a large scale was commenced that year. Public lamps were erected on Main street—oil lamps—so insufficient as to be a constant source of ridicule for the local editors; and the first great receiving sewer in Michigan street, from the Canal to Batavia street, was constructed.

This great sewer, the first proposed by the committee, has now been constructed over 18 years, and has never failed in any essential particular. Its cost at that time was considered enormous, and it was vigorously opposed by many of the property holders of the district proposed to be taxed. Its construction involved many important questions. First, its great expense. No sewer or drain ever before constructed, had cost but a few hundred dollars, while the tax proposed for this sewer was $12,500; a sum unprecedented in such improvements. The principle of taxation was also an important question, it being the first receiving sewer proposed under the city government. The few sewers previously constructed, had proposed to drain only the street and lots in which they were laid. The new system proposed to tax for an ordinary sewer only, and all other territory proposed to be drained by it, a certain proportion for the privilege of outlet for its lateral sewers. This principle, which was then established, and its equity now universally admitted, was fiercely contested, and it required the earnest and united action, as well as persistent effort of the committee to obtain a confirmation of the assessment roll. Several minor sewers were ordered during the season of 1847, and on the 15th February, 1848, the committee submitted a report recommending a general system of sewerage. This report contemplated so large an expenditure as to alarm somewhat our property holders, and was not adopted. It was, however, ordered published in the proceedings of the Council at an expense not exceeding five dollars, and placed on file.

This report, upon which our whole system of sewerage is based, has since been carried out by the City Government, and has proved eminently successful. I would beg to read it at this time, as the shortest way of informing you of its general plan.

REPORT.

The Committee on Sewers, to whom was referred the subject of preparing and submitting to the Council a system of sewerage, which will embrace a systematic under ground drainage for the city, would respectfully report:

That they have given the subject the consideration which its importance demands, and would submit for your consideration the following plan for the principal sewers, which it is believed will, with a proper construction of lateral sewers, furnish a complete drainage for all those portions of the city which are now built up, or which probably will be for a considerable period.

The importance of a complete system of under ground drainage, seems not to have been sufficiently appreciated by our citizens; and until the past season no sewer has been constructed with a due regard to the requirements of the city, as well in the extent of their lines, or the mode of construction. Sewers were constructed many years since in Washington, Swan, and Seneca streets, and also in Ellicott and Oak streets, which notwithstanding the defective manner in which they were constructed, have been of great service to the streets in which they were located.

It is, however, unfortunate that these sewers were not of a greater size, and more substantially built, there being already a great necessity for their reconstruction, and which must inevitably be done within a very few years. The great convenience which has been derived from these sewers has satisfied the owners of property in regard to their utility, and has done its work in preparing the public mind for a complete system of sewers, which will embrace the entire settled parts of the city, and provide outlets for such other portions as will hereafter require the same advantages.

In the establishment of this system of sewerage, the city must rely for the general cleanliness of the public streets, as well as the means of providing every dwelling house with an outlet for its surplus water, and all substances which unless carried off by some under ground medium, must operate injuriously upon the public health. This public advantage, together with the extreme comfort to private families, arising from the facility of disposing of all the surplusage which necessarily arises from domestic avocations, will at once commend itself to all, as one of the most important improvements, both in a public and domestic view, which has ever been entered into by the city.

Most of the large cities in this country have already adopted to a greater or less extent a system of under ground drainage, and it is a settled fact, that those cities which have adopted it the most extensively, are in the enjoyment of the greatest degree of cleanliness, and consequently of public health. The city of New York has heretofore been the most deficient in this particular, and this neglect has been occasioned by the peculiar nature of the soil upon which the city stands, which is composed of sand and gravel, very porous, and into which all substances of a fluid nature, are easily absorbed. For this reason sewers on the scale necessary in most other cities have heretofore been deemed an unnecessary expense. It has however been found by experience that this natural advantage is not sufficient for the enormously increasing necessity for under ground drainage, which has been created by the density of the population. The great variety of avocations carried on in all large cities, which in many instances create intolerable nuisances, can only be tolerated, by the facility afforded by the construction of large public sewers, accessible from all portions of the city, and sufficiently capacious for all manufacturing and domestic purposes. This necessity has been pressed upon the city of New York, and the Common Council are now actively engaged in providing for the entire city, and at an enormous expense, the necessary sewers for its accommodation. That this great expenditure is fully justified by the necessities of the case, has been made clearly manifest to the city authorities; and is generally concurred in, and the expense cheerfully borne by the property holders of that city. No subject of local improvement involving so large an expenditure has ever been adopted in that city, which has commanded so entirely, the approval of its inhabitants. The cleanliness and general health of the city of Philadelphia, is owing in a very great degree, to its very complete system of sewerage, adopted at an early day and systematically continued. All the other large cities in the Union, so far as your committee possess any knowledge, are provided with public sewerage to a degree corresponding with their necessities, and which is gradually becoming more perfect, as its great necessity on the score of public health, cleanliness and domestic comfort, has become properly understood.

No city within the knowledge of your committee has carried the system of sewerage to such a degree of completeness, both in a public and private application, as the city of London.

The sewers are of the largest dimensions, when required for conductors, and the most perfect connection with all parts of the city, by means of lateral sewers. So perfect is the combination and connection of this system of sewerage, that every building or tenement has access to their subterraneous passages,—thus enabling every family to dispose of every drop of surplus fluid created by domestic necessities. The importance of this system to a city so densely populated as London, where so large a portion of the city is occupied by the lower classes of people, compelled to crowd into the smallest possible space compatible with mere existence, and where the unavoidable nuisances created by such a system must breed pestilence, is easily imagined. So necessary has it been found for the preservation of the health and cleanliness of the city, that it has been long established by law, that every tenement shall have a drain connected with the public sewers, sufficiently large to convey off every particle of domestic surplusage.

The system of sewerage in Paris is also on an extensive scale, accomplishing the same objects as that of the city of London, and subject to similar municipal control and supervision. It is, therefore, an established necessity in all large cities that a system of under ground drainage should be established and maintained. In the consideration of the subject of a general system of sewerage for this city, your committee have in the first place endeavored to establish the great lines of receiving sewers, which will be sufficiently capacious to receive all the lateral sewers, which it may be necessary to discharge into them. With this object in view, your committee would respectfully submit for the consideration of the Council, the following, as the lines of principal receiving sewers, which it is necessary, in their opinion, should be adopted by the Common Council, at the earliest practicable period.

1st. A sewer through Michigan street, from the Erie Canal to Carlton street. This sewer is now completed as far as Batavia street, and is under contract to Genesee street. It is built of hard brick, $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet in the clear, and of a circular form, which is deemed the best mode of construction for sewers of every description. From Genesee to Goodell street, for the construction of which, there is now a strong application before the Council, it will not be necessary for the sewer to exceed half the size of the sewer below Genesee street, and from Goodell to Carlton street, a sewer 2 feet in the clear, will doubtless be sufficiently large to accommodate the section of territory draining into it.

2d. A sewer in Delaware street from a point in the vicinity of the Johnson house, to Genesee street, and from thence to the Erie Canal. A portion of this sewer north of Mohawk street, is now in process of construction. From Mohawk street it should be sunk at least ten feet below the surface, and 3 feet in diameter to Genesee street. From thence to the Erie Canal, the size should be increased to 4 or $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet. This sewer will receive all the drainage of Delaware, Franklin and Pearl streets, and also Genesee, Court and Niagara streets, centering at the Public Square, and in all of which streets, sewers must eventually be constructed.

3d. A sewer in the eastern part of the Second and Fourth Wards, in the streets nearest the general course, and receiving the water of the "Big Ravine," so called. This sewer should commence as high up as Genesee street, and continue to the Little Buffalo Creek, and should be of a capacity sufficiently large to receive the large amount of water which naturally flows in that channel, as well as the additional drainage which will accrue from the large and increasing population in that part of the city.

The necessity for the construction of this sewer is by no means pressing; several years will doubtless elapse before it will be required by the owners of property in that region; but your committee believe that its necessity is apparent, and that its ultimate construction should be recognized and determined upon, that the improvements in that part of the city may be made with reference to its final completion.

4th. A sewer commencing at or near the intersection of Delaware and Virginia streets, following the general course of the ravine or water course in the rear of the old Johnson place, to the Erie Canal.

From the broken and unfavorable nature of the ground in this section, it will be impossible to carry this sewer through streets, or to divert it in any manner from its present channel. It will, therefore, be only necessary to recognize this channel as one of the great lines of public sewers, and construct in the streets intersected by its channel, substantial stone culverts across their entire width.

The ravine being an established water course, cannot be obstructed by any of the owners of property on its line, and they will therefore be compelled either to leave it open, as it is at present, or to culvert it, in a manner corresponding with the street culverts.

These four lines of receiving sewers, will in the opinion of your committee, provide for the entire drainage of the city, for a long period, and perpetually within the limits embraced by their two extremes. Other sewers may be required north and west of the last mentioned line, should it be deemed necessary by the increase of population, but the number proposed, is sufficient to provide for all the prospective wants of the city, which should properly come within the cognizance of the present legislation.

There are also some sewers of minor extent, but which it will be necessary to construct independently of those indicated, and which should be constructed at as early a day as practicable. Among these, is one in Erie street, from South Division street, to the Erie Canal, and which should receive a lateral sewer from west Swan and Seneca streets. Also a sewer in Court street from the Erie Canal to Morgan street, and thence through Morgan street to Mohawk street, receiving the water of the sewers in Mohawk and Niagara streets, which center at that point. This last named sewer will receive the water flowing across the land from Niagara street to the canal, thus enabling its owners to fill up and improve it as they may desire.

It may appear on a cursory view of this subject, that the amount of improvement proposed by the foregoing system, is too extensive for the necessities of the city, and may startle property holders by its expense. It must be borne in mind however, that a large portion of the improvements contemplated, are not of immediate necessity, and will require many years for their completion. The main object of your committee is to lay the foundation of a complete sewerage system, which will eventually embrace all portions of the city, the execution of which will devolve upon successive councils, who will order the work as it may be required and applied for, by various sections of the city; but which should all be executed with reference to a general and established plan.

In furtherance of the plan herewith submitted, it will be necessary that accurate surveys should be made of the lines of receiving sewers proposed, and a map of each line, with the proper levels and grades entered upon it, prepared and deposited in the office of the Street Commissioner.

A general Sewerage map should also be prepared, which will exhibit the line of sewers, already constructed, with the location of the several openings and inlets, and from which the proper direction and grade of future sewers, connecting with the main lines, or the Erie Canal, can at all times be ascertained.

Your committee would therefore beg leave to offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the City Surveyor be directed to prepare a general sewerage map of the city, which will exhibit all the lines of sewers already constructed, with their grades, openings and inlets, as far as can be ascertained; and upon which map, shall be entered all sewers which may hereafter be constructed by order of the city, with their grades, openings and inlets, and such other information as may be necessary to place the city authorities in full possession of the facts necessary to establish a complete system of sewerage. Adopted.

O. G. STEELE,

O. ALLEN,

L. K. PLIMPTON,

Committee on Sewers.

February 15, 1848.

It will be seen that the Report embraced the territory from Carolina street on the west, to the Big Ravine, as it was termed, in the old Fourth Ward, near Spring and Pratt streets and northerly as far as Goodell and Virginia streets, then substantially the limit of population.

All the receiving sewers named in the Report, were constructed in a few years, including the proposed large Sewer in the Big Ravine before referred to—which was mainly by the efforts of S. V. R. Watson, Esq.,—and the sewer through the great ravine in the rear of the old Johnson Place, near the Buffalo Female Academy, and passing between Georgia and Carolina streets to the canal.

The success of the Michigan street Sewer was so decided as to settle the whole question as to the utility and policy of large receiving sewers. Previous to its construction, that part of the city, above Eagle street, was destitute of any system of drainage. All the water which fell upon the surface, remained until taken up by evaporation. No cellar or vault could be made available, as the first hard rain would fill them with water, and no means existed to carry it off. The sewer remedied all this. It was built circular in form, 4½ feet diameter, and sunk 10 feet below the grade, thereby fully meeting every requirement of the large territory proposed to be drained, and changing in a very few years, the whole character of that portion of the city. As fast as the sewer was completed, connections were made with it from the buildings on the street, and lateral sewers were speedily constructed in the cross streets. It is but just to say that as its value developed itself, all serious opposition ceased, and the whole territory was in a few years thoroughly drained. Large receiving sewers outside of the limits referred to, have since been constructed, and one of the largest in the city, known as the Emslie street Sewer, built in the easterly part of the city—through the territory known as the Watson purchase, and other property outside of the city limits—has brought that large and almost deserted territory into use for building purposes. Nearly every street in the old city limits, is now provided with a sewer, and the city from being the worst, has become one of the best drained cities in the United States. It is mainly to this system of sewerage that we are indebted for the reputation, which seems now to be established, of being one of the healthiest cities in the State.

Such is briefly the history of the origin and progress of our system of sewerage. I propose now to submit some observations upon the general subject of sanitary science, of which sewerage is the foundation, and as applicable to this city.

The primary object and direct effect of sewerage was to drain the territory of its surface water, and receive the refuse water of the houses bordering upon the lines of sewers. A broader and more effective attribute was given them after the introduction of water by the Water Works Company in 1852. The general introduction of water into our dwellings, stores and manufactories, was made effective and complete by the facility of draining off the surplusage of mechanical avocations and domestic necessities. Our habitations soon became fitted up with bathing rooms, water-closets, and all those household improvements which have been brought to such great perfection by the art of plumbing, while out-houses and sinks of every description, which become so great a nuisance as population becomes dense, have nearly disappeared from the center of the city.

These great changes in the character of our city in this respect have come upon us so gradually as to be almost imperceptible, and yet nothing in the way of local improvement has been more important, or productive of greater benefits. The two great elements of sewerage and water supply, have insured to us the means of perpetual provision against local nuisances of every description, and the underground conveyance to the river of every domestic or manufacturing residuum which may affect unfavorably the health of the city and the comfort of our citizens. Let any citizen of twenty years' standing contrast his present household arrangements with those of the best class of houses previous to 1848. Houses which then ranked as first-class would now be considered almost untenable.

With what sort of grace would the lady head of any of our first-class houses, with the modern necessities of gas, water supply, heating apparatus, and all the innumerable conveniences from kitchen to parlor now so universal, submit to the first-class house of twenty years ago?

And yet, while we have much to congratulate ourselves in our public and private improvements during the last twenty years, there is still much to be done; and we are far from perfection in sanitary science. While our sewerage is very complete, the street inlets are too infrequent, and few of them are provided with proper stench-traps. This should be universal, as the often-times noxious effluvia from exposed sewers is one of our greatest dangers. Even our houses are some of them unprotected in this respect, and this is one of the sources of disease against which we should be carefully guarded.

The threatened reappearance of the cholera among us the coming season—the first appearance of which in this city, in 1832, was so graphically portrayed by

Mr. Allen at our last meeting—admonishes us that too much precaution cannot be taken to prevent, if possible, and modify in any event, the ravages of this terrible disease. Every family should look to it that their sewer connections and water supply are complete, and that every generating element of disease is removed from the premises or adjacent streets. Vacant lots should be examined, and all collections of surface water, or discharges from buildings or factories of any kind, should be thoroughly suppressed or conducted quietly to the sewers. The sewers themselves should be frequently flushed with water, and the street gutters kept clean by frequent washings, in warm weather. To effect all this, a more full and diffused water supply appears to be indispensable.

Nothing conduces more to the comfort and the health of a city, than an abundant supply of water. It should not only be abundant, but if possible, profuse; and if the present means of supply are inadequate, steps should be taken at once to increase the supply, and render its distribution more complete and universal. We cannot overrate the importance of this great sanitary element, and with an abundant supply, and a judicious use of it, with our system of underdrainage, we may consider ourselves well fortified against any ordinary pestilence. Our Health Physician should be a well educated and scientific man, who thoroughly understands the principles of Sanitary Science, and who can and will give special attention to the duties of his office. Our Board of Health should be men of character, and some special adaptedness to the position, and the Health Inspectors, whose duty it is to keep watch and guard over the sanitary condition of the city, should be men of intelligence, faithfulness and independence. They should be able to detect all latent causes of disease, and apply the remedy with promptness and impartiality.

Elements of disease frequently arise from unexpected quarters, but always from some violation of sanitary laws. I have recently read somewhere an account of a pestilence at a Young Ladies' Seminary, I think at Pittsfield, Mass., one of the healthiest districts of New England, and the institution admirably situated in this respect. Yet a form of typhoid fever prevailed to such an extent that the school was broken up. The cause was a mystery for some time, and it was finally discovered that a sewer had been choked up to such an extent as to prevent a proper discharge, and the effluvia thus created was the cause of the disease. This example illustrated the necessity of great care in respect to drainage in general, as well as a more perfect knowledge of sanitary science.

It is well, however, to understand that all disagreeable odors are not necessarily unhealthy. Such is the case with tanneries, soap manufactories, horse stables, foundries, &c., and I may add gas works. None of them are desirable for next door neighbors, but still do not produce any element of disease. I mention these simply to show that while the best regulated houses and neighborhoods may from no apparent cause become unhealthy, other localities, seemingly much more exposed, may be exempt. It is quite evident that sanitary science is imperfectly understood, and that a higher education in that respect should be required in the selection of men with whom may be entrusted the responsibility of the health of a large city.

I would here take occasion to allude to a department connected with this general subject, which should receive more attention than has heretofore been given to it, and that is the burial of our dead.

Within twenty years past great improvements have been made in this respect. Burial grounds, and interments in tombs and vaults in cities, have been prohibited, and large cemeteries have been provided contiguous to, but removed from, the great centers of population. These grounds have been improved with reference to monumental ornaments, the park-like arrangement of the grounds, and the cultivation of appropriate shrubbery. Our burial places, instead of being shunned and neglected by the living, are becoming, and in many cities have become, the most beautiful and attractive resorts for our population. All this is creditable to those who have provided these beautiful resting places for the dead, and should be encouraged by all.

But science teaches that the prevailing idea of carefully preserving the body from decay is erroneous, and that the object of interment should be rather to expedite than retard decay.

I am conscious that this is a subject which should be treated with delicacy, but it is one which should command attention from the living, in a sanitary point of view. The law of God and of Nature commands that the body shall return to the earth from whence it came, and the spirit to God who gave it. This law is inexorable in all its requirements, and all efforts prompted by love and affection for deceased friends for the preservation of their bodies, can produce but temporary delay.

When the spirit departs from the body all are on a common level. The king has no element more sacred than the slave, nor the rich and distinguished over the poor and unknown. It may well be questioned whether all our efforts for preserving the body by depositing in vaults or tombs, metal coffins, stone or brick cases, are not injurious to the living as well as useless for the purpose intended. I am aware that this subject is one of feeling and sentiment, and that all civilized people have their own customs and prejudices in regard to the disposition of their dead. But science and the experience of past ages admonishes us that we should meet this subject as we should all others which form a part, and a most important one of our duties as members of a civilized and Christian community.

I hope the subject may be treated by some of our medical men of science, and correct ideas and customs may be brought forward for our consideration.

I would beg to say before concluding this somewhat desultory paper, that I have nothing of what may be termed scientific knowledge on this subject of sanitary science, but having been connected with various movements and institutions where the subject has been much considered, I have thrown together these suggestions with the hope that some of our members of the medical profession, may be induced to take it up, and treat in a thorough and scientific manner.

THE GRAIN ELEVATORS OF BUFFALO.

A PAPER

READ BEFORE THE BUFFALO HISTORICAL SOCIETY CLUB, MAR. 13, 1865.

By JOSEPH DART, Esq.

HAVING been invited to present to you some facts and recollections in regard to the introduction of Grain Elevators at this port, I would respectfully submit the following.

This subject has a bearing, not only on the citizens of this community, but also upon an immensely larger number of people, whose grain productions are sent, and whose bread supplies are received through our hands. In fact, whatever facilitates the movement of bread stuffs, directly affects one of the first interests of mankind. It might, perhaps, be said that the ready production of food is a question of greater importance than its easy transportation. The first great care of men commonly, is to produce food, not to know what to do with it when produced. The road from hand to mouth is short and easy enough with men at first, but as society grows, and division of labor is made, producers and consumers of food become widely separated, and the question of transportation becomes exceedingly important. When the hands of producers and the mouths of consumers are distant by the space of half a continent and even half a globe, the road from hand to mouth is a long one, and oftentimes "a hard road to travel." Whatever smooths the roughness of that road cheapens food, and benefits mankind. Some of the first inventors have devoted themselves to the various questions which this important interest has raised. It is somewhat noticeable that the three great mechanical minds who gave to our country, near the commencement of the present century, so great an impulse, not only in the leading mechanic arts, but also, through them, almost every material and moral interest of the land and the world,—Fulton, Whitney and Evans,—appear to have been chiefly useful in the three great interests of transportation, clothing and food. To the question of transportation, Robert Fulton directed his thoughts, and by one stroke of success, he shortened the length of all rivers, and the width of all seas and lakes, and brought producers and consumers everywhere into easy and cheap communication, as we see to-day in the rapidity with which grain is hastened forward across our lakes to the waiting and hungry East. Eli Whitney, by the invention of the "cotton gin," made the culture of upland cotton profitable, thus giving a new staple to near half a continent, and greatly cheapening the fabric most used as clothing throughout the world. Oliver Evans, who deserves a place by the side of these distinguished men, was the person, who, more than any other man, simplified and perfected the processes by which grain is converted into food.

Among his valuable improvements for the manufacture of flour, were the Elevator and Conveyor, inventions designed only for use in flouring mills, but which have been adapted, by an improvement originating here, for the easy and rapid transfer of grain in its movement towards a market. The Elevator and Conveyor thus applied, are the simple means by which the immense and innumerable cargoes of grain, constantly arriving at this port, are readily transferred from vessels into canal boats or cars, and quickly sent forward on their Eastern course. It is now in use for this purpose at all the principal grain depots in the land, and has become absolutely essential to the economical handling of large quantities of grain.

Before stating, as far as I can, the way in which this new application of the Elevator came to be made, it may not be inappropriate to present some facts in regard to the first introduction of the Elevator into Mills.

Prior to 1785, the universal custom in manufacturing flour, was to take the meal, as it came from the mill stones, and hoist it into the bolting room by hand. The flour was also taken from the bolt to the drying and packing rooms in the same way. In 1812, when there was an effort to set aside Mr. Evans' claim, as the inventor of the Elevator, Mr. Niles, editor of Niles' Weekly Register, stated that the practice in his boyhood, at the celebrated Brandywine Mills at Wilmington, Delaware, near which place he was born and spent his boyhood, was to hoist the meal to the bolt, in the upper part of the building, in large tubs, by means of a rope and pulley worked by hand. A man was also required to feed the hopper which supplied the bolt. In this way, every single step in the process of flouring grain, required separate attendance, and also involved in the frequent handling of the flour in such cumbrous methods, considerable loss by waste.

In 1780, Oliver Evans completed his apprenticeship and joined his brothers, who were carrying on a small mill. He had already shown great taste for mechanical pursuits, studying by night by the light of burning shavings when refused candles by his employer, and preparing himself, by a thorough mastery of his trade, to write, as he did some years afterwards, "The Young Miller's Guide and Millwright's Companion," a book which is still a standard work on the matters of which it treats. It was not long after he commenced business, before he had completed the several improvements in mill machinery, on which his fame chiefly rests. Among these, as already stated, was the Elevator, a simple apparatus with which all are now familiar, consisting merely of a series of buckets attached to a leather or canvas and rubber belt revolving upon pulleys. At the time already mentioned, when the attempt was made to break Mr. Evans' claim as patentee of the Elevator, it was alleged that a Mr. Stroud, a neighbor of Mr. Evans, was the originator of it, and that it was suggested to his mind by observing that a buckle of a band in a wheat cleaner, caught up, on each revolution, and carried over with it a few kernels of grain. On enquiry, however, it was ascertained that Mr. Stroud never thought of an Elevator till Mr. Evans had talked with him on the subject, and that Mr. Evans assured him of the possibility of the thing, before the time when the action of the buckle on the cleaner strap had been observed.

Another of the improvements, introduced at the same time, was the Conveyor, for removing flour or grain in a horizontal direction to the point where the Elevator or bolt could receive it. Mr. Evans also contrived a very ingenious and almost automatic process, by which the flour was kept in motion and exposed to air till thoroughly dry and ready for packing. Previously the custom had been to kiln dry the grain, making the husk so brittle that in grinding, it became mixed with the meal, and the small particles would pass through the superfine bolt with the flour. By these various improvements, it was estimated that the saving, in the increased yield of superfine flour from a given quantity of grain, amounted to fifty cents on every barrel of flour produced.

And yet it is remarkable with what extreme difficulty Mr. Evans brought his inventions into general use. He traveled through Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, offering his improvements gratis to the first party in each county who would introduce them, and found scarcely an individual willing to accept his offers. The question usually asked him was, "Have your neighbors, the Brandywine millers, adopted them?" He was obliged to say "No," which generally finished his prospects for securing a trial. After long importunity a delegation of these millers waited on Mr. Evans, and gave him their reply in the following words: "Oliver, we have had a meeting and agreed if thou wilt furnish all the materials, and thy own boarding, and come thyself to set up thy machinery in one of our mills, thee may come and try it, and if it answers a valuable purpose we will pay thy bill; but if it does not answer, thee must take it all out again, and leave the mill just as thee finds it at thy own expense."

They knew he was too poor to comply with their terms.

When he had introduced his improvements into his own mill, and they were working so admirably that he could tend it easier alone than he had done before with two men and a boy, he invited these millers to come and see his inventions work. It happened the day they came he was engaged not only in tending his mill alone, but also in making hay in an adjoining clover lot. As he saw the company approaching, he quietly withdrew to his meadow and went to work with his hay. He thought when his visitors went into his mill and saw it in full operation, cleaning, grinding and bolting, and no human hand near, they would be convinced his improvements were of some use. They went over the mill by themselves, and then came out to him with the request that he would go in and explain the process. He went in with them, but took care to say it was "an uncommon busy day" with him, as he had to tend mill and make hay too. He showed them his mill, however, and as the account states, "they saw that the Elevators and Conveyors brought the meal from the two pairs of stones, and the flour from the bolts to the apparatus called the hopper-boy, which spread it over the floor, stirring, fanning and gathering it, and attending to the bolting hoppers at the same time, without the help of a single hand in any part of the process," and when the inventor expected they would believe the testimony of their own eyes, one of them exclaimed "It will not do, it cannot do, it is impossible that it should do." The delegation went off and reported that "the whole contrivance was a set of rattle traps, not worth the notice of men of common sense." A few years afterwards, when it was proved in Ellicott's Mills, near Baltimore, which turned out three hundred and twenty-five barrels of flour a day, that Mr. Evans' improvements made a saving of some $5,000 a year in cost of attendance, and of fifty cents a barrel in increased yield of superfine flour, amounting in that one mill in a single year, to over $37,000 clear saving, the Brandywine millers concluded that their neighbor's "set of rattle traps" had rather an agreeable rattle after all. But no sooner was the immense value of these improvements manifest, than these same men combined to destroy Mr. Evans' claim as the patentee, and when, after oppressive litigation, the inventor's rights were sustained, these liberal gentlemen contrived to avoid responsibility themselves, and a comparatively poor man, whom they had adroitly put forward, was left to pay the bill, to whom Mr. Evans, from motives of humanity, remitted nearly half the amount.

While Mr. Evans was struggling to introduce his Elevator, as an improvement in the manufacture of flour, on the banks of the Delaware, about the year 1785, he had little idea, that at Buffalo Creek, in the distant wilderness, at the foot of Lake Erie, then without a white inhabitant on its banks, the wants of a vast trade, at that time entirely unknown, would give rise, some fifty years later, to a new application of his Elevator, and that another effort would then be necessary, in order to introduce it, as a commercial rather than a manufacturing appliance, for facilitating the transshipment of grain.

In noticing this new use of the Elevator, it is worthy of remark that some of the most useful inventions have not been discoveries of new principles or methods of mechanical action, but new applications of methods and principles already known. Some inventions consist of entirely new ideas. Such was Arkwright's invention of spinning by rollers, a thing probably never thought of in the history of the world, till it entered his mind. Such were some of James Watt's discoveries in perfecting the steam engine. The invention of the high-pressure steam engine by Oliver Evans, who has been styled the "Watt of America," was another instance of a new principle successfully introduced.

But on the other hand, Fulton's steamboat involved no new principle. It was only a new application of a force already familiar. So Evans' Elevator was an old idea. In the efforts which were made to dispossess him of the fruits of his improvements, it was successfully shown that the idea of raising substances by a revolving chain of buckets, was not original with him.

Thomas Jefferson wrote a very learned paper against Evans, in which he quoted from ancient scientific books, showing that this was a method of lifting which had come down from a very remote antiquity. Travelers, in Egypt, had seen rude wheels revolving on the banks of the Nile, over which passed ropes hung with buckets, lifting water for the irrigation of the soil. Mr. Jefferson argued that it made no difference in principle, that the ancient Elevators consisted of circular buckets, strung through their centers, on a connecting rope or chain. The attachment of the cups to a leather strap was not deserving a patent, for a strip of hempen webbing would do as well. Nor was it material that Mr. Evans' Elevator was used to raise wheat and flour, rather than water, for in that case, Mr. Jefferson argued, it would require a new patent, if any one should use an Elevator to lift corn or peas, and should claim a sole right to that use. It was also proven that a Mr. Martin, of Maryland, had actually constructed, and some time used a grain Elevator attached to a seed-planter, and consisting of a leather strap, one and-a-half inches wide, armed with little thimble-like cups, each lifting three or four kernels of seed, and carrying them over the upper rollers, eighteen inches higher than the lower one, and dropping them regularly into the furrow in the soil, over which the planter was drawn.

Yet the ingenuity and learning of Mr. Jefferson, and of the wealthy millers who sought his aid, failed to invalidate Mr. Evans' rights as a patentee. It was justly held, though the Elevator was not a new idea, Evans was the first person who had made a successful application of it to the manufacture of flour, and his right to the sole use of that application was sustained. An inventor's merit consists not merely in conceiving an idea of a machine, but also in overcoming the practical difficulties in its successful operation.

Robert Fulton's fame as a benefactor to his race is not destroyed by showing that other men were before him in propelling boats by steam. Nearly twenty years before Fulton succeeded, James Rumsey moved a steamboat on the Potomac, near Sheppardstown, at the rate of five miles an hour. John Fitch, at Philadelphia, about the same time, built a steamboat which ran eight miles an hour. But Fitch's power was applied by upright paddles worked at the sides of the boat, and Rumsey took in a charge of water through an opening in the keel, and shot it out again near the rudder after the manner of a syringe. Fulton's application of steam to paddle wheels was the first practical success in this line.

In view of such facts as these, the statement is made with some confidence, that the first practical success in handling grain by machinery for commercial purposes, a success which was attained in this city, was a step in advance.

It was a step in advance, because it was an entirely new use of the Elevator. It was not new to raise grain into a Mill by an Elevator. This had been done from wagons near fifty years previous to the erection of my Elevator in 1842-3. I am informed by our worthy townsman, Mr. John T. Noye, that in 1824 his father rented a flouring mill on Bronx River, near King's Bridge, N. Y., for the manufacture of flour, attached to which was an Elevator for the unloading of grain from vessels for the use of the Mill. Mr. Noye thinks this Mill was erected about ten or twelve years previous to its occupation by his father. But the Commercial Elevator grew out of the wants of the grain shipping interests of this port.

It was not till after 1830 that grain in any considerable quantities, began to pass through this place to the markets of the East, and in 1835, at which time Ohio was the only State sending us grain, the entire annual receipts were only 112,000 bushels, including all kinds of grain. From that time, however, there began to be a very rapid increase, rising from half a million bushels in 1836 to near (2,000,000) two million bushels in 1841, an increase of four hundred per cent. in five years. It began to be evident that there was to be a very speedy and immense increase in the future grain business of this port. It seemed to me, as I reflected on the amazing extent of the grain producing regions of the Prairie West, and the favorable position of Buffalo for receiving their products, that the Eastward movements of grain through this port, would soon exceed anything the boldest imagination had conceived.

The report of Hon. Samuel B. Ruggles, Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, in the New York Assembly of 1838, had spoken in the most hopeful and confident terms of the future growth of the West, and the commerce which was destined to be carried on through this State, to and from tide-water and the lakes. His language was deemed, by many, extravagant, and his ideas visionary.

A series of letters in 1839, on internal improvements and the commerce of the West, by General Dearborn, of Massachusetts, temporarily residing in this city, took the same encouraging view.

None of these statements, however, were equal to the results which a few years produced. Mr. Ruggles has since declared that his predictions, which were considered as extravagant, were considerably below his confident expectations, but that he did not dare to put his figures as high as he felt he might, and as time has since shown he could have done, for fear his views would be altogether rejected as unworthy of trust. These estimates of the growth of our inland commerce bring to mind the remark of Mr. Burke, on the population of the American Colonies in 1775. "State the numbers as high as we will," said he, "while the debate continues, the exaggeration ends."

It seemed very clear to me, that such an increasing trade demanded largely increased facilities for its accommodation at this point.

Already, with the near two million bushels received in 1841, unavoidable delays in the transshipment at this port were frequent, and were the occasion of much vexation and expense. Up to this time the universal method of transfer was to raise the grain from the hold of the vessel in barrels, by tackle and block, to weigh it with hopper and scales swung over the hatchway of the canal boat, or carry it into the warehouse in bags or baskets on men's shoulders. This method, even at this present day, is largely in use in the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, which illustrates the force of habit, as a small army of men may be seen with baskets on their shoulders, unloading vessels, at immense cost of muscle and time, to say nothing of pecuniary loss. Only ten or fifteen bushels were commonly weighed at a draft, and the most that could be accomplished in a day, with a full set of hands, was to transfer some eighteen hundred or two thousand bushels, and this only when the weather was fair. Everything was at a stand in bad weather, and on an average one-fourth of the time was lost by rain or high winds. The harbor was often crowded with vessels waiting for change of weather. In these circumstances I determined, in 1841, to try the use of steam power in the transfer of grain for commercial purposes.

There were various obstacles to the successful execution of such a plan, and predictions of failure were somewhat freely expressed. I believed, however, that I could build a warehouse of large capacity for storage, with an adjustable Elevator and conveyors to be worked by steam, and so arranged as to transfer grain from vessels to boats or bins with cheapness and dispatch. Amid many difficulties, discouragements and delays, I began the work of erecting the building on Buffalo Creek, at the junction of the Evans' Ship Canal, in the autumn of 1842, on the spot where now stands the stately Elevator of Hon. D. S. Bennett, which has risen Phoenix-like from the ashes of its parent. Indeed, the building I then erected may perhaps be called the parent not only of the Bennett Elevator but of all others, for I believe it was the first steam transfer and storage Elevator in the world. It was the first successful application of the valuable invention of Oliver Evans, to the commercial purpose, for which it is now extensively employed. It is, however, but justice to state that an effort in this direction was made a short time previous, by Mahlon Kingman, Esq., then a forwarding merchant of this city, now deceased, and that an Elevator designed to be operated by horse power was constructed, in a warehouse previously built for ordinary storage purposes, on the Evans' Ship Canal, but I am informed by Mr. Charles W. Evans, whose warehouse was adjoining, that Mr. Kingman never unloaded a vessel with it, although he made the attempt. To illustrate his opinion, that the plan was impracticable, I will mention here that a short time before my building was completed, Mr. Kingman, in passing it said to me in a familiar manner, tapping me on the shoulder, "Dart, I am sorry for you, I have been through that Mill, it won't do, remember what I say, Irishmen's backs are the cheapest Elevators ever built." Soon after my Elevator was in operation he came to me about two or three o'clock in the afternoon to get two canal boats loaded that day. I reminded him of the speech he wished me to remember: his reply was—"Dart, I find I did not know it all."

My experiment from the very first working was a decided and acknowledged success. Within a month after I started, a leading forwarder, who had confidently predicted that shippers could not afford to pay the charges of elevating by steam, came to me and offered double rates for accommodation, but my bins were all full. The great saving of time by the use of the Elevator was immediately seen. To give an instance that occurs to my mind, the schooner John B. Skinner came into port with 4,000 bushels of wheat early in the afternoon and was discharged, received ballast of salt, and left the same evening; made her trip to Milan, Ohio, brought down a second cargo and discharged it, and on her return to Milan went out in company with vessels which came in with her on the first trip down, and which had but just succeeded in getting rid of their freight in the old way. In this case the freight work of two vessels was done by one, and instances approaching this have not been uncommon. It had been said that eight hundred bushels an hour was the extent to which an Elevator could be driven and grain correctly weighed. I began with buckets twenty-eight inches apart, holding about two quarts, and raised without difficulty a thousand bushels an hour. I soon put the buckets some twenty-two inches apart, and then sixteen or eighteen inches, till eighteen hundred or two thousand bushels an hour were raised. In some of the Elevators now in use, the buckets hold eight quarts and only one foot apart, and will raise 6,000 or 7,000 bushels an hour, weighing it correctly. The storage of the first Elevator was 55,000 bushels—its capacity was doubled three years after.

During the twenty-two years that have now elapsed, the rapidly increasing receipts of grain have made a demand for continually increasing facilities for its transfer and storage, and there are now twenty-seven Elevators, besides two floating Elevators, storing, some of them, 600,000 bushels, and all together fully six million bushels, and capable of moving in a single day more than the entire annual receipts at this port at the time my Elevator was built. To give at one view an idea of the extent to which elevating facilities have been provided at this port, I annex a statement of all the Elevators that have been erected here, including those that have been destroyed by fire:*

The annual grain product of the partially developed Great West, has already attained a magnitude numbered by nearly one thousand millions of bushels, and the surplus moved Eastward by the several routes to market, has during the last four years ranged from eighty to one hundred and forty millions of bushels, and of this more than one-half has been received at Buffalo.

For the successful prosecution of this large grain trade, next in importance to the Erie Canal and the great water highways extending from Buffalo thousands of miles Westward by lakes and rivers, is the present mode of handling grain through the medium of Steam Elevators. They have become an invaluable and indispensable link in the chain of transportation, and are almost as important to the commercial interests of the country in the saving of time, labor and expense, as the telegraph in annihilating distance. There are now invested in the nearly two thousand vessels navigating the lakes, more than sixteen millions of dollars, and were it not for Elevators for transferring grain at the points of transshipment, more than double the number of vessels and men, and consequently twice the amount of capital would be required to accomplish the same results.

In 1862 about seventy millions of bushels of grain were passed through the Elevators at Oswego and Buffalo. This large amount of grain could not have been transferred at these points by the modes in use twenty-five years ago, and if it were possible to do it, the expense would have been augmented to more than twenty fold the present cost.

The annual saving in expense to lake commerce by this simple, cheap and expeditious process for handling grain, can only be numbered by tens of millions of dollars.

The population of the Lake Basin States, has during each ten years of the last thirty, been augmented in a ratio equal to fifty-five per cent. The present population exceeds nine millions, and if a corresponding ratio of increase shall be maintained during the remaining portion of this century, there will be in the year 1900 a population of upwards of sixty millions in the States bordering upon and commercially tributary to the great lakes.

The increase in the grain product of the West for the last thirty years, has been in a ratio equal to the increase in population. The cereal product of the West and South West was in 1860 about six hundred millions of bushels, against one hundred and sixty-six million bushels in 1840. If this ratio of increase shall be maintained during the remaining portion of the century, the grain product in the year 1900 will exceed two thousand five hundred millions of bushels. Of the surplus over and above the wants for domestic consumption, about fifteen per cent. has been forwarded to Eastern markets. Provided a like ratio of the surplus crop of the year 1900 is sent to market, then there will be a movement of five hundred millions of bushels. Not all the product of the gold mines of California, will equal the value saved to the internal commerce of the Western and North Western States by those labor-saving Elevators with only the improvements in them now in use.

Oliver Evans had a religious idea that he was raised up by Providence to confer important benefits on his fellow men, and certainly could he now be aware how extensively his improvements are used, how wonderfully, by their means, trade has been extended, commerce increased, food cheapened, and the general welfare of mankind advanced, he would be satisfied that his laborious and perplexing life had not been in vain.

EARLY HISTORY OF GRAND ISLAND.

THE CITY OF ARARAT—ITS CORNER STONE.

MORDECAI M. NOAH.

READ BEFORE THE BUFFALO HISTORICAL SOCIETY CLUB, MAR. 5, 1866.

BY LEWIS F. ALLEN, Esq.

GRAND ISLAND lies in the Niagara River, County of Erie, and State of New York. Its south end is about four miles below the mouth of Lake Erie, to the north, and its north end is about the same distance above, and south of Niagara Falls. Its extreme mean length is a trifle over eight miles; its extreme breadth is a little over six miles—but that width extends only a small distance—the average being probably four and a half miles; containing in its whole area, by survey, 17,381 acres. It is a body of good agricultural land, and until about the year 1834, with the exception of ten or twelve hundred acres, was covered with a heavy growth of timber. Its situation along the shore of the river, is exceedingly pleasant and commanding, elevated six to thirty feet above the water, and along its various coasts embraces many picturesque views of the city of Buffalo, the villages of Tonawanda, and Niagara Falls, and the adjacent Canada, and American shores. At its south-western extremity lies, separated by the small arm of Beaver Creek, about one hundred feet in width, Beaver Island, containing forty acres. At its north-western extremity, is a small inlet of deep water, called Burnt Ship Bay, in which are two sunken hulks of vessels, said, by tradition, (and no doubt truly,) to be driven in there from Chippewa by the British forces and destroyed by their French commanders, in the French and English Canadian war of the year 1755. In very low water the timber heads of one of these vessels may be seen a few inches above the surface. Separated by this bay, a narrow marsh, and an insignificant streamlet of only a few feet in width, lies Buckhorn Island, containing by survey 146½ acres. No other islands are immediately contiguous to Grand Island.

Spafford's Gazetteer, printed in the year 1824, relates that the State of New York, by a treaty held with the Seneca Indians at Buffalo, September 12th, 1815, purchased of that tribe, Grand, and the several other small islands in the Niagara River. For Grand Island, this authority does not give the price paid by the State. My impression is, that I have seen in some other work, that $11,000 was the consideration, and for the other small islands, Spafford states that the consideration was $1,000 and an annuity of $500.

Immediately after its purchase by the State, numerous squatters flocked on to Grand Island, and built cabins along its shores on both sides—on the west, or Canadian side, mostly—for the purpose of cutting, and working into staves the valuable white oak timber which abounded there, for the Montreal and Quebec markets. From those cities the staves were shipped, mainly, to the British West India Islands. The staves were taken from Grand Island in scow boats to Chippewa, thence wagoned around the Falls to Lewiston, and there put on board sail vessels for Montreal and Quebec.

At the time the State of New York purchased Grand Island, the territorial titles of the lake and river islands between the United States and Canada were undetermined, and they so remained until the year 1822, when all the islands in the Niagara River, excepting Navy Island, opposite the foot of Grand Island, were declared by the boundary commissioners, appointed by the governments of the United States and Great Britain, to belong to the United States, and consequently they came under the jurisdiction of the State of New York. Up to the year 1819, the squatters held undisputed possession of the land, amenable to neither New York nor Canadian law, setting up a sort of government of their own, wherein they settled their own disputes, if they had any, but defying the authority of either jurisdiction on the opposite shores. In a foot note to the "Field Notes" of the survey of the Island made in the months of October and November, in the year 1824, by Silas D. Kellogg and James Tanner, after describing Lot No. 18, on the east, or American bank of the river, the surveyors remark: "On this lot stands the remains of a log cabin, in which the renowned Mr. Clarke used to reside. While it was undetermined to which government the Island belonged, this man came on, and became generalissimo, and the director of an independent judiciary, whose laws and customs were enforced and practiced like those of the King of the Outlaws." This Mr. Clarke—"governor" he used to be called, when administering squatter law on the Island—I knew very well in the year 1835, then living at Pendleton, in Niagara County, on the Erie Canal, where he had the reputation of a good citizen. I asked him about his residence, and administration at Grand Island. He evidently disliked to talk upon the subject, and waived it at every attempt I made to get a history of the affair, but acknowledged the fact of living there, and being somewhat a conspicuous man among the people. He was then, perhaps fifty years of age, but whether now living or not, I am unable to say. So annoying had the squatters on the Island become to the neighboring shores, by their frequent acts of outlawry, and their depredations on the valuable timber of the Island, that the New York State authorities took summary measures to remove them. An instance was related, that when a sheriff, or constable, armed with a civil process, had landed there to arrest one of the squatters, several of them assembled, and treated both the officer and his authority with contempt; took his oars, or paddles, out of his boat, and set him adrift down the river, where he floated for some distance, until some one, touched by his distress, put out with another boat and took him over to the American shore.

Immediately after this, in the year 1819, Sheriff Cronk, of this county, (then Niagara,) was clothed with a requisition from the State authorities, to call out a company of the militia, in and about Buffalo, to make a descent on the Island, and rid it of the squatters. Col. Benjamin Hodge, (still living with us,) then having the requisite military command, with a sufficient number of armed men, and accompanied by the sheriff, took boats from the "Seeley Tavern," about three miles below Black Rock, on the river shore, landed on the island, made its entire circuit, drove off every squatter, either on to the Canadian or American shores, and burned every dwelling, and other building to the ground. Thus was established the authority and law of the State over Grand Island. A portion of these squatters however, immediately returned; but as they ceased cutting timber, and held themselves amenable to the law, they were not again molested by State authority. They rebuilt their cabins, cultivated their little patches of clearing, and remained peaceable citizens, taking a little timber "on the sly," only, keeping a few cattle, and pigs, and eking out a poor, but to them quite satisfactory subsistence.

Grand Island, in those early days of the Niagara frontier, in its grand and deep solitude, was a charming place for those who loved to range the woods, or float on the quiet pellucid waters of the noble river encircling it. From head, to foot, along the shores, or in its deepest wilderness, on a still day, the roar of the Falls below, was always heard, and along its westerly shore their ascending spray was always in sight. Men of thought and reflection, loved occasionally to camp for days on its shores, and fish, and hunt, as the mood for either recreation impelled them; and no wonder that the "loafing," desultory habits of the squatters found there a congenial dwelling place. There was the serene sky, the clear waters, the venerable trees—all in their quiet summer beauty, inviting to repose, to listlessness, and laziness, so congenial to squatter, and roving life! Who can blame the vagabonds for loving to live and harbor there!

The woods abounded with deer; occasionally a bear, a wolf, or other large game worthy a hunter's elevated ambition, was found. Great numbers of raccoons, squirrels, and other small furry quadrupeds inhabited the woods, while myriads of ducks and other game birds thronged the shores and waters in their proper season. The Indians from the Seneca and Tonawanda reservations, held annual hunts of days or weeks upon the Island, and carried away canoe loads of the choicest venison.

The fishing, too, was magnificent. Tons of the finest muskelonge, yellow pike, sturgeon, black bass, pickerel, mullet and smaller fish were hauled up to the shore in seines in their seasons, or drawn out by the hook and line of an adroit angler. The hook and line fishing of the Niagara was nowhere excelled. No wonder such a paradise of hunters and sportsmen was sought and lived upon by those to whose habits steady labor was irksome. The warm, sunny nooks of "the clearings" produced every annual garden fruit, and vegetables of the climate. Melons, and other choice delicacies abounded with every one who had the industry to plant and cultivate them. Hunting parties would go down from Black Rock and Buffalo, for a week's recreation, and "drive" the woods for deer, while "coons," squirrels, ducks, and other game were the continuous incidental trophies of their sport. So passed for several years, the squatter and camp life of Grand Island.

In the year 1824, the State ordered a survey of the land into farm lots, and in that year a party was fitted out for the purpose. A part of the work was done under the supervision of Silas D. Kellog, in that year. But Mr. Kellog sickened and died before the work was completed, and early in the next year, James Tanner was commissioned, and finished the work.

In this year, (1825,) an eventful history was about to open on the Niagara Frontier. Those members of our Society who then lived here, in the relation of their reminiscences of that period, have been prone to mark it as an eventful year in three striking incidents, relating to the history of Buffalo, viz.: the visit of General La Fayette, the completion and opening of the Erie Canal, and "the hanging of the three Thayers." They might have added to it another memorable occurrence, not only to Buffalo, but to the Niagara frontier. Following the survey of Grand Island into farm lots, for settlement, of which the State authorities gave notice, in the public newspapers, an idea occurred to the late Major Mordecai Manuel Noah, a distinguished Israelite, of the city of New York, then editor of a prominent political journal, called "The National Advocate," that Grand Island would make a suitable asylum for the Jews of all nations, whereon they could establish a great city, and become emancipated from the oppressions bearing so heavily upon them in foreign countries.

To understand this matter thoroughly, it is necessary to go somewhat into particulars. I knew Major Noah well. Physically, he was a man of large muscular frame, rotund person, a benignant face, and most portly bearing. Although a native of the United States, the lineaments of his race were impressed upon his features with unmistakable character, and if the blood of the elder Patriarchs, or David, or Solomon flowed not in his veins, then both chronology and genealogy must be at fault. He was a Jew, thorough and accomplished. His manners were genial, his heart kind, and his generous sympathies embraced all Israel, even to the ends of the earth. He was learned too, not only in the Jewish and civil law, but in the ways of the world at large, and particularly in the faith and politics of "Saint Tammany," and "the Bucktail Party" of the State, of which his newspaper was the organ and chief expounder in the city of New York. He was a Counsellor at Law in our courts, had been Consul General for the United States at the Kingdom of Tunis, on the coast of Barbary—at the time he held it, a most responsible trust. Although a visionary—as some would call him—and an enthusiast in his enterprises—he had won many friends among the Gentiles who had adopted him into their political associations. He had warm attachments, and few hates, and if the sharpness of his political attacks, created for the time, a personal rancor in the breasts of his opponents, his genial, frank, childlike ingenuousness healed it all at the first opportunity. He was a pundit in Hebrew law, traditions and custom. "To the manor born," he was loyal to his religion, and no argument or sophistry could swerve him from his fidelity, or uproot his hereditary faith. My friend, and neighbor, William A. Bird, Esq., has related to me the following anecdote: Many years ago, when his mother, the late Mrs. Eunice Porter Bird Pawling, resided at Troy, N. Y., a society was formed, auxiliary to one organized in the city of New York, for the purpose of christianizing the Jews of all parts of the world. Mrs. Pawling, an energetic doer of good works, in the then infant city of her residence, was applied to for her co-operation in that novel benefaction. She had her own doubts, both of its utility, and success, as results have proved the correctness. But, determined to act understandingly, she wrote a letter to Major Noah, asking his views on so important a subject. He replied in a letter, elaborately setting forth the principles, the faith, and the policy of the Jewish people, their ancient hereditary traditions, their venerable history, their hope of a coming Messiah; and concluded by expressing the probability that the modern gentiles would sooner be converted to the Jewish faith, than that the Jews would be converted to theirs.

Major Noah, as I observed, a visionary, somewhat, and an enthusiast altogether, made two grand mistakes in his plan. In the first place he had no power or authority over his people; and in the next he was utterly mistaken in their aptitude for the new calling he proposed them to fulfill. But he went on. He induced his friend, the late Samuel Leggett, of New York, to make a purchase of 2,555 acres, partly at the head of Grand Island, and partly at its center, opposite Tonawanda, at the entrance of the Erie Canal into the Niagara River. Either, or both of those localities were favorable for building a city. These two tracts he thought sufficient for a settlement of his Jewish brethren, which, if successful, would result in all the lands of the Island falling into their hands. Nor, on a fairly suppositious ground—presuming the Jews, in business affairs, to be like the Gentiles—were his theories so much mistaken. The Canal, opening a new avenue to the great western world, from Lake Erie to the Ultima Thule of civilization at that day, was about to be completed. The Lakes had no extensive commerce. Capital was unknown as a commercial power in Western New York. The Jews had untold wealth, ready to be converted into active and profitable investment. Tonawanda, in common with Black Rock and Buffalo, with a perfect and capacious natural harbor, was one of the western termini of the Erie Canal, and at the foot of the commerce of the western lakes. With sufficient steam power, every sail craft and steamboat on the lakes could reach Grand Island, and Tonawanda, discharge into, and take on their cargoes from canal boats, and by their ample means thus command the western trade. Buffalo and Black Rock, although up to that time the chief recipients of the lake commerce, lacking moneyed capital, would not be able to compete with the energy, and abundant resources of the proposed commercial cities to be established on Grand Island, and at Tonawanda, and they must yield to the rivalry of the Jews. Such was Major Noah's theory, and such his plans. Mr. Leggett's co-operation, with abundant means for the land purchase, he had already secured. Through the columns of his own widely circulating "National Advocate" he promulgated his plan, and by the time the sale of the Grand Island lots was to be made at the State Land Office in Albany, other parties of capitalists had concluded to take a venture in the speculation.

The sale took place. Mr. Leggett purchased 1020 acres at the head of the Island, at the cost of $7,200, and 1535 acres along the river in a compact body, above, opposite, and below Tonawanda, at the price of $9,785, being about fifty per cent. above the average of what the whole body of the land sold at per acre—that is to say: the whole 17,381 acres sold for $76,230, being an average, including Mr. Leggett's purchase, of about $4.38 per acre.

Next to Leggett, Messrs. John B. Yates and Archibald McIntyre, then proprietors, by purchase from the State, of the vast system of lotteries—embracing those for the benefit of Union College, and other eleemosynary purposes—(gambling in lotteries for the benefit of colleges and churches was thought to be a moral instrument in those days)—purchased, through other parties, a large amount of the land, and "Peter Smith, of Peterboro," (living, however at Schenectady,—and the most extensive land speculator in the State—father of the present Gerrit Smith,) took a large share of the remainder. To sum up, briefly, the result of the sale of the Grand Island lands: Leggett, and Yates and McIntyre complied with the stipulated terms of the sale, paid over to the State their one-eighth of the purchase money, and gave their bonds for the remainder; while Smith—wary in land purchasing practice, when the State of New York was the seller—did no such thing. He paid his one-eighth of the purchase money down, as did the others, but neglected to give his bond for payment of the balance. The consequence was, when the eclat of Noah's Ararat subsided, and his scheme proved a failure, the land went down in value, and Smith forfeited his first payment, and the lots fell back to the State. But on a lower reappraisal by the State some years afterwards, Smith again bought at less than half the price at which he originally purchased, made his one-eighth payment again, and gave his bond as required, thus pocketing, by his future sale of the property, over $20,000 in the transaction!

All this, however, aside from Mr. Leggett's purchase for the benefit of Major Noah, has nothing to do with our main history, and is only given as an occurrence of the times.

Major Noah now secure in the possession of a nucleus for his coveted "city of refuge for the Jews," addressed himself to its foundation and dedication. He had heralded his intentions through the columns of his "National Advocate." His contemporaries of the press ridiculed his scheme, and predicted its failure; yet true to his original purpose, he determined to carry it through. Wise Jews around him shook their heads in doubt of his ability to effect his plans, and withheld from him their support. But nothing daunted, he ventured it unaided, and almost alone. By the aid of an indomitable friend, and equally enthusiastic co-laborer, Mr. A. B. Siexas, of New York, he made due preparations, and late in the month of August, in the year 1825, with his robes of office and insignia of rank securely packed, they left the city of New York for Buffalo. He was a stranger in our then little village of twenty-five hundred people, and could rely for countenance and aid only on his old friend, the late Isaac S. Smith, then residing here, whom he had known abroad while in his consulate at Tunis. In Mr. Smith, however, he found a ready assistant in his plans. Major Noah, with his friend Siexas, arrived in Buffalo in the last days of August. He had got prepared a stone which was to be "the chief of the corner," with proper inscription and of ample dimensions for the occasion. This stone was obtained from the Cleveland, Ohio, sand stone quarries. The inscription, furnished by Major Noah, was cut by the late Seth Chapin of Buffalo.

As, on examination when arriving here, he could not well get to Grand Island to locate and establish his city, it was concluded to lay the corner stone in the Episcopal Church of the village, then under the rectorship of the Rev. Addison Searle. As this strange, and remarkable proceeding, so novel as that of laying a foundation for a Jewish City, with its imposing rites and formula, its regal pomp and Jewish ceremony, in a Christian Episcopal Church, with the aid of its authorized rector, may strike the present generation with surprise, a word or two may be said of the transaction.

The Rev. Mr. Searle, was at that time the officiating clergyman in the little Church of St. Paul's, in the village of Buffalo, and had been placed there as a missionary by the late wise and excellent Bishop Hobart. He held a government commission as chaplain of the United States, and had been granted a some years' furlough from active duty. He had been on foreign cruises; had coasted the Mediterranean, and spent months in the chief cities of its classic shores, and visited the beautiful Greek Island of Scio, a few weeks after the burning of its towns, and the massacre of its people by the Turks in 182-. He was an accomplished and genial man, of commanding person and portly mien; his manners were bland, and his address courtly. Whether he had made the acquaintance of Major Noah abroad, or in New York, or whether he first met him on this occasion at Buffalo, I know not, but their intercourse here was cordial and friendly.

On the 2d day of September, 1825, the imposing ceremony of laying the corner stone of the city of Ararat, to be built on Grand Island, took place; and as a full account of the doings of the day, written by Major Noah himself, was published at the time in "The Buffalo Patriot Extra," I take the liberty of repeating them from that paper:

It was known at the sale of that beautiful and valuable tract called Grand Island, a few miles below this Port, in the Niagara River, that it was purchased in part by the friends of Major Noah of New York, avowedly to offer it as an asylum for his brethren of the Jewish persuasion, who in the other parts of the world are much oppressed; and it was likewise known that it was intended to erect upon the Island a City called ARARAT. We are gratified to perceive, by the documents in this day's Extra, that coupled with this colonization is a declaration of Independence, and the revival of the Jewish government under the protection of the United States, after the dispersion of that ancient and wealthy people for nearly 2,000 years—and the appointment of Mr. Noah as first Judge. It was intended, pursuant to the public notice, to celebrate the event on the Island, and a flag staff was erected for the Grand Standard of Israel, and other arrangements made; but it was discovered that a sufficient number of boats could not be procured in time to convey all those to the Island who were desirous of witnessing the ceremony, and the celebration took place this day in the village, which was both interesting and impressive. At dawn of day, a salute was fired in front of the Court House, and from the terrace facing the Lake. At 10 o'clock, the masonic and military companies assembled in front of the Lodge, and at 11 the line of procession was formed as follows:

ORDER OF PROCESSION.

Grand Marshal, Col. Potter, on horseback.

Music.

Military.

Citizens.

Civil Officers.

United States Officers.
State Officers in Uniform.
President and Trustees of the Corporation.

Tyler.

Stewards.

Entered Apprentices.

Fellow Crafts.

Master Masons.

Senior and Junior Deacons.

Secretary and Treasurer.

Senior and Junior Wardens.

Masters of Lodges.

Past Masters.

Rev. Clergy.

Stewards, with corn, wine and oil.

		Bible.

Square and Compass borne by a Master Mason.

The Judge of Israel.

In black, wearing the judicial robes of crimson silk, trimmed with ermine and a richly embossed golden medal suspended from the neck.

A Master Mason.

Royal Arch Masons.

Knight Templars.

On arriving at the Church door the troops opened to the right and left, and the procession entered the aisles, the Band playing the Grand March from Judas Maccabees. The full toned organ commenced its swelling notes, performing the Jubilate. On the Communion table lay the Corner Stone, with the following inscription, in Hebrew.

"Hear O Israel, the Lord is our God.—The Lord is ONE."

ARARAT,

The Hebrew's Refuge, founded by

MORDECAI MANUEL NOAH,

In the month of Tisri, 5586, corresponding with September, 1825, and in the 50th year of American Independence.

On the stone lay the silver cups with wine, corn and oil.

The ceremonies commenced by the Morning Service, read emphatically by the Rev. Mr. Searle of the Episcopal Church. "Before Jehovah's awful Throne," was sung by the choir to the tune of Old Hundred.—Morning prayer.—First lesson from Jeremiah, 31st.—Second lesson Zeph. iii. 8th verse. Psalms for the occasion, 97, 98, 99, 100; 127th psalm in verse. Ante Communion Service—Psalm in Hebrew—Benediction.

Mr. Noah rose and pronounced a discourse, or rather delivered a speech, announcing the reorganization of the Jewish Government, and going through a detail of many points of intense interest, to which a crowded auditory listened with profound attention. On the conclusion of the ceremonies the procession returned to the Lodge and the Masonic brethren and the Military repaired to the Eagle Tavern and partook of refreshments. The Church was filled with Ladies and the whole ceremony was impressive and unique. A grand salute of 24 guns was fired by the Artillery, and the Band played a number of patriotic airs.

We learn that a vast concourse assembled at Tonawanda, expecting that the ceremonies would be at Grand Island. Many of them came up in carriages in time to hear the inaugural speech. The following is the proclamation which will be read with great attention and interest. A finer day and more general satisfaction has not been known on any similar occasion.

PROCLAMATION TO THE JEWS.

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, to manifest to his chosen people, the approach of that period, when, in the fulfillment of the promises made to the race of Jacob, and as a reward for their pious constancy and triumphant fidelity, they are to be gathered from the four quarters of the Globe, and to resume their rank and character among the governments of the Earth. And whereas, the peace which now prevails among civilized nations;—the progress of learning throughout the world, and the general spirit of liberality and toleration which exists, together with other changes, favorable to light and to liberty, mark in an especial manner, the approach of that time, when "peace on earth and good will to man," are to prevail with a benign and extended influence, and the ancient people of God, the first to proclaim his unity and omnipotence, are to be restored to their inheritance and enjoy the rights of a sovereign independent people. Therefore, I, Mordecai Manuel Noah, Citizen of the United States of America, late Consul of said States for the city and kingdom of Tunis, High Sheriff of New York, Counsellor at Law, and by the grace of God, Governor and Judge of Israel, have issued this my proclamation, announcing to the Jews throughout the world that an asylum is prepared and hereby offered to them, where they can enjoy that peace, comfort and happiness, which have been denied them, through the intolerance and misgovernment of former ages. An asylum in a free and powerful country, where ample protection is secured to their persons, their property, and religious rights; an asylum in a country, remarkable for its vast resources, the richness of its soil, and the salubrity of its climate; where industry is encouraged, education promoted, and good faith rewarded. "A land of Milk and Honey," where Israel may repose in peace, under his "vine and fig tree," and where our people may so familiarize themselves, with the science of government, and the lights of learning and civilization, as may qualify them for that great and final restoration to their ancient heritage, which the times so powerfully indicate.

The asylum referred to is in the State of New York, the greatest State in the American confederacy. New York contains 43,214 square miles, divided into fifty-five counties and having six hundred and eighty-seven Post towns and cities, containing one million five hundred thousand inhabitants, together with six million acres of cultivated land, improvements in agriculture and manufactures, in trade and commerce, which include a valuation of Three Hundred Millions of dollars of Taxable property. One hundred and fifty thousand militia, armed and equipped, a constitution founded upon an equality of rights; having no test oaths, and recognizing no religious distinctions, and seven thousand free schools and colleges affording the blessings of education to Four Hundred Thousand children. Such is the great and increasing State to which the emigration of the Jews is directed.

The desired spot in the State of New York to which I hereby invite my beloved people throughout the world, in common with those of every religious denomination, is called Grand Island, and on which I shall lay the foundation of a City of Refuge to be called ARARAT.

Grand Island in the Niagara River, is bounded by Ontario on the North, and Erie on the South, and within a few miles of each of those great commercial Lakes. The Island is nearly twelve miles in length and varying from three to seven miles in breadth, and contains upwards of Seventeen Thousand Acres of remarkably rich and fertile land. Lake Erie is about two hundred and seventy miles in length, and borders on the States of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio; and westwardly by the possessions of our friends and neighbors, the British subjects of Upper Canada. This splendid Lake unites itself by means of navigable rivers, with Lakes St. Clair, Huron, Michigan and Superior, embracing a lake shore of nearly three thousand miles; and by short canals those vast sheets of water, will be connected with the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, thereby establishing a great and valuable internal trade to New Orleans and the Gulf of Mexico. Lake Ontario on the North, is one hundred and ninety miles in length, and empties into the St. Lawrence, which passing through the Province of Lower Canada carries the commerce of Quebec and Montreal to the Atlantic Ocean.

Thus fortified to the right and left by the extensive commercial resources of the Great Lakes, and their tributary streams—within four miles of the sublime Falls of Niagara, affording the greatest water power in the world for manufacturing purposes,—directly opposite the mouth of the Grand Canal of Three Hundred and sixty miles inland navigation, to the Hudson River, and City of New York, having the fur trade of Upper Canada to the west, and also of the great territories towards the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Ocean; likewise the trade of the Western States of America; Grand Island may be considered as surrounded by every commercial, manufacturing and agricultural advantage, and from its location is pre-eminently calculated to become, in time the greatest trading and commercial depot in the new and better world. To men of worth and industry it has every substantial attraction, the capitalist will be enabled to employ his resources with undoubted profit, and the merchant cannot fail to reap the reward of enterprise in a great and growing republic, but to the industrious mechanic, manufacturer and agriculturist, it holds forth great and improving advantages.

Deprived as our people have been for centuries of a right in the soil, they will learn with peculiar satisfaction, that here they can till the land, reap the harvest, and raise the flocks which are unquestionably their own; and in the full and unmolested enjoyment of their religious rights, and of every civil immunity, together with peace and plenty, they can lift up their voice in gratitude to Him, who sustained our fathers in the wilderness and brought us in triumph out of the land of Egypt; who assigned to us the safe keeping of his oracles, who proclaimed us his people, and who has ever walked before us like a "cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night."

In His name do I revive, renew and re-establish the Government of the Jewish Nation, under the auspices and protection of the constitution and laws of the United States of America.

confirming and perpetuating all our rights and privileges, our name, our rank, and our power among the nations of the earth as they existed and were recognized under the government of the rooges. And I hereby enjoin it upon all our pious and venerable Rabbis, our Presidents and Elders of Synagogues, Chiefs of Colleges, and Brethren in authority throughout the world, to circulate and make known this my proclamation, and give to it full publicity, credence and effect.

It is my will that a census of the Jews throughout the world be taken, and returns of persons, together with their age and occupation, be registered in the archives of the Synagogues where they are accustomed to worship, designating such in particular, who have been and are distinguished in the useful arts, in science, or in knowledge.

Those of our people who from age, local attachment, or from any other cause prefer remaining in the several parts of the world which they now respectively inhabit, and who are treated with liberality by the public authorities, are permitted to do so, and are specially recommended to be faithful to the governments which protect them. It is however expected, that they will aid and encourage the emigration of the young and enterprising, and endeavor to send to this country such, who will add to our national strength and character, by their industry, honor and patriotism.

Those Jews who are in the military employment of the different sovereigns of Europe, are enjoined to keep in their ranks until further orders, and conduct themselves with bravery and fidelity.

I command that a strict neutrality, be observed in the pending wars between the Greeks and the Turks, enjoined by considerations of safety towards a numerous population of Jews now under the oppressive dominion of the Ottoman Porte.

The annual gifts which for many centuries have been afforded to our pious brethren in our Holy City of Jerusalem, to which may God speedily restore us, are to continue with unabated liberality; our seminaries of learning and institutions of charity in every part of the world, are to be increased, in order that wisdom and virtue, may permanently prevail among the chosen people.

I abolish forever Polygamy among the Jews, which without religious warrant, still exists in Asia and Africa. I prohibit marriages or giving Keduchim without both parties are of a suitable age, and can read and write the language of the country which they respectively inhabit, and which I trust will ensure for their offspring, the blessings of education and probably the lights of science.

Prayers shall forever be said in the Hebrew Language, but it is recommended that occasional discourses on the principles of the Jewish faith, and the doctrines of morality generally be delivered in the language of the country, together with such reforms, which without departing from the ancient faith may add greater solemnity to our worship.

The Caraites and Samaritan Jews, together with the black Jews of India and Africa, and likewise those in Cochín China, and the sect on the coast of Malabar, are entitled to an equality of rights and religious privileges, as are all who may partake of the great covenant, and obey and respect the Mosaic Laws.

The Indians of the American Continent in their admitted Asiatic origin, in their worship of one God, in their dialect and language, in their sacrifices, marriages, divorces, burials, fastings, purifications, punishments, cities of refuge, division of tribes, in their High Priests, and in their wars and in their victories, being in all probability the descendants of the lost tribes of Israel, which were carried captive by the King of Assyria, measures will be adopted to make them sensible of their origin, to cultivate their minds, soften their condition and finally re-unite them with their brethren the chosen people.

A capitation Tax of three shekels in silver per annum, or one Spanish dollar, is hereby levied upon each Jew throughout the world, to be collected by the Treasurers of the different congregations for the purpose of defraying the various expenses of re-organizing the government, of aiding emigrants in the purchase of agricultural implements, providing for their immediate wants and comforts, and assisting their families in making their first settlements, together with such free-will offerings as may be generously made in the furtherance of the laudable objects connected with the restoration of the people and the glory of the Jewish nation. A Judge of Israel shall be chosen once in every four years by the Consistory at Paris, at which time Proxies from every congregation shall be received.

I do hereby name as Commissioners, the most learned and pious Abraham de Cologna, Knight of the Iron Crown of Lombardy, Grand Rabbi of the Jews, and President of the Consistory at Paris, likewise the Grand Rabbi Andrade of Bordeaux, and also our learned and esteemed Grand Rabbis of the German and Portugal Jews, in London, Rabbis Herschell and Mendoza, together with the Honorable Aaron Nunez Cardoza, of Gibraltar, Abraham Busnac, of Leghorn, Benjamin Gradis, of Bordeaux, Dr. E. Gans and Professor Zuntz, of Berlin, and Dr. Leo Woolf of Hamburgh, to aid and assist in carrying into effect the provisions of this my proclamation, with powers to appoint the necessary agents in the several parts of the world and to establish emigration societies in order that the Jews may be concentrated and capacitated to act as a distinct body, having at the head of each Kingdom or Republic such Presiding officers as I shall upon their recommendation appoint. Instructions to these my commissioners shall be forthwith transmitted. And a more enlarged and general view of plan, motives and objects will be detailed in the address to the nation. The Consistory of Paris is hereby authorized and empowered to name three discreet persons of competent abilities to visit the United States, and make such report to the nation as the actual condition of this country shall warrant.

I do appoint Roshodes Adar, Feb. 7, 1826, to be observed with suitable demonstrations as a day of Thanksgiving to the Lord God of Israel, for the manifold blessings and signal protection which he has deigned to extend to his people, and in order that on that great occasion our prayers may be offered for the continuance of his divine mercy and the fulfillment of all the promises and pledges made to the race of Jacob.

I recommend peace and union among us, charity and good will to all, toleration and liberality to our brethren of every religious denomination, enjoined by the mild and just precepts of our holy religion. Honor and good faith in the fulfillment of all our contracts, together with temperance, economy and industry in our habits.

I humbly intreat to be remembered in your prayers, and lastly and most earnestly, I do enjoin you to "Keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes and his commandments and his judgments and his testimonies as it is written in the Laws of Moses, that thou mayest prosper in all thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself."

Given at Buffalo, in the State of New York, this second day of Tizri, in the year of the world, 5586, corresponding with the fifteenth day of September, 1825, and in the fiftieth year of American Independence.

By the Judge,

A. B. SIEXAS, Sec'y Pro Tem.

The day succeeding the ceremonies—the "corn, and wine, and oil," and "the proclamation"—the newly constituted Judge in Israel issued another address (also printed in the Buffalo Patriot, Extra,) setting forth the design of the new city, and invoking the aid and countenance of his brethren abroad in contributing of their substance and influence to its uprising, and population. Thus, with due benediction, ended the ceremonial—the first of its kind known in this country—of the corner stone of an anticipated Hebrew, or any other, city being laid, on the communion table of a Christian church!

The ceremonial, with its procession, "Masonic and Military," its pomp and magnificence, passed away. Major Noah, a day or two afterwards, departed for his home in New York; the "corner stone" was taken from the audience chamber of the church, and deposited against its rear wall, outside; and the great prospective city of Ararat, with its splendid predictions and promises vanished, "and like an insubstantial pageant faded, left not a rack behind!"

This was, in fact, the whole affair. The foreign Rabbis denounced Noah and his entire scheme. He had levied taxes of sundry "shekels" on all the Jewish tribes of the world; assumed supreme jurisdiction over their emigration to America, and sought to control their destinies afterwards. But having no confidence in his plans, or financial management, the American Jews, even, repudiated his proceedings, and after a storm of ridicule heaped on his presumptuous head, the whole thing died away, and passed among the other thousand and one absurdities of other character, which had preceded it. Noah, however, with his ever ready wit, and newspaper at hand, replied to all the jeers and flings in good humor, and lost none of the prestige of his character and position, either politically or morally. He was known to be eccentric in many things, and this was put down as the climax of his eccentricities. Poor in money, always, he had no influence in financial circles, yet he was a "power" in the State. Some years after his Ararat affair he held the office of Judge in one of the Criminal City Courts of New York with decided acceptance to the public; married a wealthy Jewess of high respectability, reared a family, and died some ten or a dozen years ago in New York, lamented by those who best knew him, as a kind and generous man.

The subsequent history of the corner stone which we have described, is imperfectly known. It is generally supposed, by those who have heard of the matter at all, that Ararat was actually founded on Grand Island, opposite Tonawanda, and some thirty years ago accounts were frequently published by tourists, and in the newspapers, that the stone aforesaid stood encased in a monument on the actual spot selected by Noah for the building of his city. That the stone did so stand, in a brick monument at Grand Island, opposite Tonawanda, but not on the site of any city, past or present, is a true fact; and it came about in this wise: In the summer of the year 1827, having become a resident in Buffalo in April of that year, I saw the stone leaning against the rear underpinning of the little Church of St. Paul, next to Pearl street. It had stood there from the time it was removed, at its consecration in 1825. When it was removed from the wall of the church I cannot say. In the year 1833, I made a purchase of Messrs. Samuel Leggett, of New York, Yates and McIntyre, of Albany, and Peter Smith, of Schenectady, and a few other parties, on behalf of a company of gentlemen in Boston, Massachusetts, with whom I had an interest, of the lands they held on Grand Island, amounting, in all, to about 16,000 acres. The average price paid for it was a little more than five dollars per acre. The principal object of the purchase was the valuable white oak ship timber abounding there, which it was intended to cut and convey to the Boston ship yards.

A clearing and settlement was made on the Island, opposite Tonawanda. Several houses were built, and a steam mill for sawing the timber into plank erected. A few months after the purchase, in the year 1834, being one day at the house of General Peter B. Porter, at Black Rock, I saw Major Noah's corner stone lying in his lawn near the river front of his dwelling. In answer to my question, how it came there? he said that being in New York some few years previous, and meeting Major Noah, with whom he had been long acquainted, he told him that his corner stone of Ararat was standing behind St. Paul's Church in Buffalo. Noah then requested him to take care of it, and place it in some secure spot, as he wished to have it preserved where it would not excite comment, as he had heard quite enough about it. In compliance with the request, General Porter took the stone, and placed it in his own grounds. Taking a fancy to the stone, I asked General Porter to give it to me, assuring him that I would take it to Grand Island and give it an honorable position. He complied with my request, and I removed it to the new settlement on the Island. A decent architectural structure of brick was erected, standing about fourteen feet high and six feet square. A niche was made in the front, facing the river, in which the stone was placed, and a comely roof, as a top finish, put over it. A steam passenger boat was running for several years, daily, through the summer, between Buffalo and the Falls of Niagara, touching each way at Whitehaven, the little Grand Island settlement, and many people went on shore to see the monument, which told a false history. Artists and tourists sketched the homely little structure, and copied the inscription on the stone; and the next year a "Guide Book to the Falls of Niagara," issued in Buffalo, by a young man named Ferris, I believe, had the monument, with the "Corner Stone of the Jewish City of Ararat," well engraved and described, conspicuous in its pages. That, of course, was sufficient authority for the general belief that the City of Ararat was founded on that spot by Mordecai Manuel Noah.

The mill was taken down about the year 1850, and the monument becoming time worn and dilapidated, was taken down also. We had no Historical Society in Buffalo then, and although the stone was my property, I had become careless of its possession, and soon afterwards, Mr. Wallace Baxter, who owned a farm a couple of miles above Whitehaven, on the river shore, took the stone and carried it to his place. By this removal, the farm of Mr. Baxter—taking the stone as authority—became as much the site of Ararat as Whitehaven had been. In the year 1864, the late Mr. Charles H. Waite, of this city, opened a watering place—

"Sheenwater"—on the opposite, or Canada side of the Island, and Mr. Baxter carried the stone over there for the delectation of the visitors who congregated to that resort—thus establishing another locality of the renowned Ararat. Mr. Waite's house having burned a few months after the stone was removed there, he carefully placed it in an out-house on the premises, where it remained until the last summer, when I obtained his leave to take it again into my possession, which I did, and deposited it on my farm at the head of Grand Island, one of the original tracts of land which Mr. Leggett had purchased for Major Noah. There, too, had the traveling public seen it, might have been located another site for the Hebrew city. A short time afterwards I had the stone taken to my home premises on Niagara street, in this city, the same to which General Porter, then owning them, had removed it previous to the year 1834. A few weeks later it was again—and I trust finally—removed, and on the second day of January, in the year A. D. 1866, deposited in the official room of the Buffalo Historical Society, where it is duly honored with a conspicuous position, against its eastern wall, leaving the Hebrew "City of Ararat" a myth—never having existence, save in the prurient imagination of its projector, a record of which the tablet bears.

Like the dove which went out from the Ark of his great patriarchal progenitor, the stone of the later Noah has come back to its domicile—not in the Ark,—but to the city which in its embryo existence first gave it shelter and protection; and we trust—unlike the dove—to again go out no more. Just forty years from its exodus from the communion table of the Church of St. Paul's, like the Children of ancient Israel, has this eventful stone—meantime crossing, not the parted waters of the Red Sea, but the transparent waters of the Niagara, resting by the way side, and traveling through the wilderness in circuitous wanderings—found its home in the rooms of the Buffalo Historical Society.

Thus ends the strange, eventful history of Major Noah, his Hebrew City, and its Corner stone. Although that portion of the public, away from Buffalo, who ever heard anything of this modern Ararat have believed, since the year 1825, that Major Noah actually purchased Grand Island, and founded his city, and laid his corner stone upon it, the fact is, that he never owned an acre of its land, nor founded the city, nor laid a corner stone there. Nor have I been able, after diligent inquiry, to ascertain that he ever set foot on the Island. I have heard sundry traditions lately, of his going there at the time he visited Buffalo in the year 1825. All these were contradictory, and partially guess-work; no one, so far as I have ascertained, ever saw him there. Thus, that point may be considered as definitively settled.

The story of "Ararat" will hardly be complete, without the account of a queer old Irishman named Denison, who, with his family, about the year 1820, had "squatted" on one of Mr. Leggett's lots, on the head of Grand Island, near the mouth of Beaver Creek, now comprising a part of the pleasant grounds of "Falconwood," which I laid out on the river shore as a watering place, some years ago, and since disposed of to a company of gentlemen in this city.

When Major Noah came to Buffalo to found his city, the old gentleman hearing of it, and supposing he really owned the land, came up to Buffalo to see him. He told the Major that he lived on his land, and that he had invented "a perpetual motion," and if he would let him occupy it for his lifetime, he would give him the right to use his invaluable mechanical power, which, beyond all doubt, would make his—the Major's—fortune. Noah good naturedly told him that he then had no time to investigate the merits of his discovery, but that he might continue to stay on the land, and when he had time to look into it, he would determine the matter. So it rested, and the credulous old man supposed, from that time, and so claimed, the land was to be his own.

When I took possession of the Island lands as agent of the new proprietors, I told Denison that he must give me possession of the ground he occupied; that I had no wish to drive him off forcibly, but would let him remain, without payment of rent, until he could find a home elsewhere within a reasonable time. But he was disposed to do no such thing. He had made a contract with Major Noah for his "perpetual motion;" but was willing to allow me the same privilege that he had extended to him, and insisted on its performance! Being somewhat skeptical as to the utility of his "motion," I declined the proposition; but to gratify him, would look at it. With a great deal of circumlocution in its description, he produced a little section of a piece of wood about four inches in diameter, circular in form, flat on its sides, about one inch thick on one disc, and tapering to a quarter of an inch thick on the opposite disc, and a hole of half an inch through the center, through which he ran a stick on which it could revolve. Then, with a dish of water he put the thick side of the disc vertically into it, and holding on to each end of the stick, or journal, the block forthwith revolved half way round out of the water, and letting the thin edge take its place when it stopped—the thin edge in the water, and the thick one out. That was his "perpetual motion!" He declared his discovery complete; nor would he give it up, but insisted on retaining the land. After waiting a year or more, he would listen to no terms, and a suit of ejectment was commenced against him in the Supreme Court. The late Thomas T. Sherwood defended him, brought his "motion" into Court, talked to the jury as though he believed in it, and insisted on the fulfillment of the "contract," as he was pleased to call it. It is needless to say that Denison lost his suit, and obstinately refused to leave the place until the sheriff forcibly put him out of possession,—at an expense to the plaintiff of near two hundred dollars!

As no patent for that notable invention was ever obtained, and some of the present proprietors of Falconwood are extensively engaged in manufacturing, where motive power is costly to them, I will, at any time they wish it, with great pleasure give them a model of the discovery.

JANUARY.—An open winter month. Temperature variable and changes rapid. The mean was lower by $5\frac{1}{2}$ degrees than for the same period for eight years. Lake Erie closed by ice on the 6th. Barometer unusually high on the 7th and 8th.

FEBRUARY.—The greatest amount of snow on the ground at one time was three inches. The earth in many streets was frozen over three feet in depth. Mean temperature $2\frac{1}{2}$ degrees below the general average.

MARCH.—Mean temperature 10 degrees below the average for eight years. Much chill, cutting winds and cold rains. Robins and bluebirds came on the 1st. Thunder, lightning and rain on the 31st, and frost on the 27th.

APRIL.—Summer like from the 10th to the 22d. The advancing vegetation checked by the fall of four inches of snow on the 24th. The red maple in blossom on the 17th. Thunder on the 21st.

MAY.—Temperature six degrees below the mean for this month for several years. Every species of vegetation except grass advanced slow. Harmless frosts as late as the 17th. Lilacs and currants in leaf on the 10th. Strawberries and cherries in blossom on the 11th, and peach and plum trees on the 12th. Sugar maple and horse chestnut in leaf on the 18th, and forest trees generally on the 21st. Apple trees in blossom on the 22d.

JUNE.—Rains evenly distributed through the month. The first strawberries grown in this county appeared in market on the 20th. Destructive tornado on the 25th.

JULY.—Warmer by three degrees than the July average. The partial want of rain supplied by copious night dews. Weather quite favorable for haying and harvesting.

AUGUST.—Six degrees cooler than the August average for eight years. Frost in neighboring towns on the 17th.

SEPTEMBER.—Dark, cloudy and rainy. Double the usual quantity of rain fell. The crops much damaged thereby. Slight frost on the 22d and 23d.

OCTOBER.—First 20 days very fine weather. The last week dark and chilly. Destructive frosts on the 5th and 6th, killing most of the ripening grapes. Frost on the 24th, and snow flakes same day. Leaves on forest trees off by the 25th.

NOVEMBER.—Hard frosts on the 6th and 13th. The first snow to whiten the earth came on the 22d.

DECEMBER.—A month of severe cold and snow storms. Buffalo Harbor and Erie Canal closed on the 11th, and Lake Erie on the 27th.

DIRECTIONS TO KEY HOLDERS.

Upon positive information of a fire near your signal box, unlock the door and turn the crank slowly and steadily about twenty-five times, then wait a few moments, and if you hear no ticking in the box, or alarm on the bell in the tower or gongs in the Engine and Hose houses, turn again as before; in no case commence to turn while a ticking is heard in the box.

Never open the box or touch the crank except in case of fire.

Never give an alarm except from the box nearest the fire.

Be sure the box is locked before leaving it.

Never let the key go out of your possession unless to some responsible person for the purpose of giving an alarm, or called for by the Superintendent.

The number of the box signaling the fire will be struck upon the Alarm Bell in the tower, near the city building, and on the gongs in all the Engine and Hose houses. For example—To announce an alarm from signal box No. 5, the bell and gongs will be struck 5 blows. If from No. 13, the bell and gongs will be struck once, and after a pause of five seconds will be struck 5 times; thus 1—5=15. The number of the box will be repeated at intervals of from 20 to 30 seconds, until a sufficient alarm has been sounded.

BUFFALO FEMALE ACADEMY.

This institution is situated in the most eligible and delightful part of the city, and commands a beautiful view of the city, the river, and the lake. The grounds, consisting of a whole block, fronting on Delaware avenue and extending to a charming private park in the rear, are tastefully laid out and ornamented with trees and shrubbery.

The buildings, "The Cottage" and "Goodell Hall," combine all that is desirable in arrangement and convenience. The former is built of stone, and is exclusively occupied by the family of the Principal, the young ladies entrusted to his care as boarders, and the teachers of the Institution boarding with the Principal. The latter, "Goodell Hall," has been expressly erected for academic instruction, and for spaciousness and convenience, may well challenge comparison with any similar establishment in the country. It has abundant accommodations for four hundred pupils. Rev. A. T. Chester, Principal.

Board of Trustees.—Hon. N. K. Hall, President; Rev. A. T. Chester, D. D., Secretary and Treasurer. Samuel F. Pratt, Dennis Bowen, Noah H. Gardner, Henry W. Rogers, Bronson C. Buffalo Society of Natural Sciences.—Organized December 5th, 1861; incorporated January 28th, 1863. The object of this Society is the promotion and study of the Natural Sciences, through the formation of a Museum and Library, the procurement of Lectures, and the use of such other means as shall be found effective. Its primary duties and objects are the collection and preservation of specimens of every vegetable, and of every animated being, other than man and the domestic animals, (indigenous to Buffalo and its vicinity,) and of every rock, fossil, and mineral of the surrounding country; to classify, arrange, and make catalogues of them; to send catalogues of them to its correspondents, and to all lovers of natural science, who may desire them; to observe, record and diffuse a knowledge of all facts illustrative of the nature and habits of such animals and plants; and, so far as it can, to supply the desiderata of its friends and correspondents. By a reciprocation of the services it desires to render others, as well as by such purchases as it may be able to make, and the gifts of our liberal citizens, its collection will soon represent far more than the local natural history; and it hopes and expects that its rooms will be attractive and useful to naturalists, as well as gratifying to the instructed admirers of God's wonderful works. Its rooms are located in the Young Men's Association Buildings.

The Buffalo Historical Society.—The above Society was organized on the 15th day of April, 1862, and its first election of officers was held on the 20th day of May, 1862. Its general design is to discover, procure and preserve whatever may relate to the history of Western New York, and the City of Buffalo in particular. It will likewise aim to gather statistics of the commerce, manufactures and business of the Lake Region, and those portions of the west that are intimately connected with the interests of Buffalo. For that purpose, it solicits from all persons willing to contribute to the object, donations of books, pamphlets, maps, charts, manuscripts, correspondence, paintings, statuary, files of newspapers, &c., &c., which may have historic importance, or illustrate, in any way, the facts and incidents attendant upon the early settlement and subsequent progress of Western New York and the adjacent regions. Those who are in possession of any of the above described objects of Collection desired by the Society, and may not feel willing to donate or permanently part with them, are respectfully invited to deposit the same among the archives of this Society, to be reclaimed at their pleasure. No property thus deposited will be permitted to be taken from the rooms of the Society, unless with the written consent of the owner or depositor. A fire-proof depository has been secured for the use of the Society. An Annual Oration will be delivered before the Society, on the second Tuesday of January in each year, and Addresses from time to time during the year, of which public notice will be given. The monthly meetings of the Society will be held on the first Tuesday of every month.

LEGAL HOLIDAYS.

We publish by request the entire act establishing Legal Holidays. It will be seen from this that when either of the holidays named occurs on a week day, the law treats them as Sundays for all purposes connected with the payment, acceptance, or protest of bills of exchange and promissory notes. All notes maturing on such days therefore, must be paid the day before, or, if that is Sunday, the Saturday previous. But when these holidays fall on Sunday, then the next day is also a legal holiday; but the law interposes in favor of the debtors, and allows payment of notes, &c., made after the 16th of March, 1865, to be deferred to the Tuesday succeeding. The following is the bill passed March 18, 1865, chap. 146.

The people of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The act entitled "An act to designate the holidays to be observed in the acceptance and payment of bills of exchange and promissory notes," passed April fourth, eighteen hundred and forty-nine, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 1. The following days, viz.: Any day appointed or recommended by the Governor of this State or the President of the United States, as a day of fast or thanksgiving, the fourth day of July, twenty-fifth day of December, commonly called Christmas day, the first day of January, commonly called New Year's day, and the twenty-second day of February, and when the said fourth day of July, twenty-fifth day of December, first day of January, or twenty-second day of February shall occur on Sunday, then the ensuing day thereto, shall, for all purposes whatsoever, as regards the presenting for payment or acceptance, and of the protesting and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks and promissory notes, made after the passage of this act, be treated and considered as the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday. And any bill of exchange, bank check or promissory note, made after the passage of this act, which but for this act would fall due and payable on any of the days herein mentioned, shall, when said day falls on Sunday, become payable on the Tuesday next succeeding such days.

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the first day of August next.

RATES OF POSTAGE.

THOMAS'

STREET AND AVENUE DIRECTORY

OF THE

CITY OF BUFFALO.

EXPLANATION.

It will be noticed that in this Street Directory the names of the streets are set down in alphabetical order, giving the course which they run, according, as near as possible, to the points of the compass, and enumerating all streets which cross the same in the order in which they occur. In all cases where the numbering of our streets has been perfected, the numbers on the right and left hand corners have been given, so that a person wishing to find, say No. 287 MAIN STREET, on consulting the Street Directory, finds that the right hand corner of Main and Mohawk is No. 279, consequently the place he seeks is only a few doors above. The imperfect numbering of our streets prevents our Directory from being as comprehensive as it might be; still, to the resident or the stranger it will be found to be useful.

C. KURTZMAN,
 MODERN IMPROVED OVERSTRUNG
Piano Forte Manufacturer

CORNER OF NIAGARA AND STAATS STS.

All our instruments are built of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials. Their tone is deep, round, full and mellow, the touch elastic. We were at the New York State Fair, in 1862, and we claim the right of saying, that our make of Pianos is superior to any manufactured in this country.

EXTRACT FROM THE "ROCHESTER UNION."

MR. G. W. ELLIS,—Dear Sir:—I take much pleasure in saying that the Piano you furnished for Grau's Opera Troupe in this city, manufactured by Messrs. Kurtzman & Hinze, is a very fine instrument—indeed as good as I have ever used.

Yours Truly,

Every kind of work in our line, as Repairing, Tuning, &c., of Piano Fortes, is done cheap and in the best and most durable manner.

DE VINE BROTHERS,
MANUFACTURERS OF
IMPROVED OVERSTRUNG
GRAND SQUARE PIANOS

Factory and Sales Rooms, corner of Niagara and Maryland Sts.

We have now on hand, and for sale cheap, an assortment of our Patent Overstrung Pianos, with all the latest improvements, in plain and richly moulded rosewood cases of elegant design and superior finish, with plain or carved legs of various patterns, which we warrant to be equal to the very best European or American manufacture. We return thanks to our numerous friends who have so generously supported us in our endeavors to establish in Buffalo a factory worthy of the name, where instruments of superior merit are to be had, obviating the necessity of obtaining those made in distant cities, which cost from 15 to 25 per cent. more, without any advantage to the purchaser. The most competent musical judges, both professional and amateur, pronounce our Pianos to have no superior in the country, and we are confident that for quality and volume of tone, they stand unrivalled. We are determined that their present high reputation shall always be maintained, and invite those interested to call and judge for themselves, whether wishing to purchase or not.

EVERY INSTRUMENT WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

 New and second hand Pianos rented, with privilege of purchase, and rent allowed if purchased within a stipulated time.

BOOK MANUFACTURERS,
GENERAL BOOK AND JOB PRINTERS,
NOS. 157, 159, 161 AND 163 MAIN STREET,
180 and 182 WASHINGTON STREET, BUFFALO, N. Y.

THE undersigned call your attention to the fact that they have formed a co-partnership for the purpose of transacting business as Importing Stationers, Wholesale Paper Dealers, Book Manufacturers, General Book and Job Printers, and Dealers in Printers' and Binders' Materials and Machinery, under the firm name of THOMAS, HOWARD & JOHNSON, to take effect January 1, 1867.

Mr. C. F. S. THOMAS has been identified with the business of Printing and Paper Dealing for the past thirty years in Buffalo. Mr. E. H. HOWARD has for the past thirty-six years been engaged in the Dry Goods business in this city; later on and for many years, of the firm of Howard, Whitcomb & Co. Mr. J. M. JOHNSON has been engaged in the Stationery business and in the manufacture of Diaries, Pocket Books, School Books and Blank Books for nearly seventeen years.

Our new firm commences business under the most favorable auspices. Years of experience has enabled us to avail ourselves of all the advantages and improvements in the various branches of our trade, to which we call your special attention.

STATIONERY DEPARTMENT.

This includes the Store 142 Main Street, where a general assortment of Imported and American Stationery will be found. Blank Book of all desirable styles, of our own manufacture; together with a very large stock of Envelopes, all sizes, of the best manufacture.

WHOLESALE PAPER WAREHOUSE.

This is located on the several floors of Nos. 159, 161 and 163 Main Street, and comprises a very large assortment of Mediums, Demy, Crown, Cap, Folio, Psalms, Flat Letters—single and double,—Double Flat Caps, Colored Papers for Covers, Common, Fine and Superfine Book Papers, Cards, cut and in sheets, etc., comprising the best assortment for Printers' and Binders' use to be found in the State of New York.

PRINTERS' AND BINDERS' MATERIALS.

This department is intended to include a general assortment of Inks, Varnishes, Dry Colors, Tapes, Blankets, &c., for Printers; Junk and Stow Board, Foreign and American Cloth and Leather, Thread, Parchment, Glue, &c., for Binders.

PRINTING PRESSES AND BINDERS' MACHINERY.

We are prepared to receive orders for all the popular Machinery now in use by Printers and Binders, and will furnish the same at Manufacturers' Prices.

BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

This department is located in the extensive premises Nos. 180 and 182 Washington Street, known as the "Franklin Steam Printing House," where every description of Printing will be executed, as heretofore, in the highest style of the art.

Mr. LOUIS BAUM, who has been connected with Mr. THOMAS in this branch of the business, since the organization of the establishment, will continue the Superintendent as heretofore.

BOOK MANUFACTORY.

In this department we have four Adams' Presses of the best construction, and the extensive Book Binding Machinery used by Mr. JOHNSON. We refer to samples of Quarto Bibles, School Books of various styles now being manufactured for the house of Oakley & Mason, of New York, and other Publishers. Our facilities in this department are equal to any in the United States.

DIARIES AND POCKET BOOKS.

We shall continue the business of Mr. J. M. JOHNSON in the manufacture of Diaries and Pocket Books. These goods are now so favorably known by the trade, both East and West, as scarcely to need further mention from us.

BLANK BOOKS.

In this line we admit no superior. Both Mr. THOMAS and Mr. JOHNSON have been furnishing our Banks, Insurance Offices and Counting Rooms, with sets of first class Blank Books, and we refer to the business community of Buffalo for evidence of their superiority.

Should be pleased to receive your orders for anything in the above line.

THOMAS'

BUFFALO CITY DIRECTORY

FOR THE YEAR 1867.

ABBREVIATIONS.

In the pages following, h. stands for house; b. for boards; se. for with; cor. for corner; opp. for opposite; lab. for laborer; ab. for above; bel. for below; bet. for between; n. for near; r. for rear; carp. for carpenter; N. S. E. W. for north, south, east and west; N. Div. for North Division; S. Div. for South Division; Exch. for Exchange; Wash. for Washington; Com'l for Commercial; and the abbreviations of the States for streets of similar names. The word street is implied.

It will be noticed that we have introduced a new feature, in placing the names and residences of all members of a firm in a smaller type, directly under the name of the firm. This, it will be understood, does not interfere with the regular insertion of the same names in their alphabetical order.
